PIZZER SALE RECEIPTS UNEXPECT-EDLY LARGE.

Valuers Failmate that $3.000,000 More than the Price for Which the Collection Was Offered Will Se Realized-Tapeatries, Porcoluins, and Furniture Sold Yesterday, Pages, May 19.-Tapestries, furniture, Italian porcelains and stone work were sold toon at the Spitzer sale. The rooms were more grawded than on any previous day and the total sales amounted to $60,040. The bidding was good throughout. The sum of $1,113,000 has been realized so far, and the valuers estimate that the total receipts from the sale will be near, or perhaps exceed. $10,000,000. The collection was offered, en bloc, after Spitzer's death for $3,000,000 and later to the French Government for $5,000,000.

The tapestries were sold first. No. 300, a representation of the Nativity, brought $4,000. It is of Flemish make, and belongs to the late fitteenth century. The tapestry is woven in silk, gold, and silver. The Virgin and three angels are seen kneeling in adoration before the infant Jesus, who lies on a cloth, which is stretched on a stone. Behind the Virgin ere St. Joseph and a holy woman. In the background are two other women and a shepherd.

No. 680, $7,000.

The border is composed of truits, flowers, and follage. The piece measures 43 inches square. A group of three figures decorates No. 400. ish work, which sold for $0,000. St. Mary and St. Anne are seated, and the Virgin holds on her knees the infant Jesus, who is squeezing a bunch of grapes into a vase which he offers to St. Anne. On each side of the group stand two angels wearing long tunies. This piece is about 42 inches square and is woven in gold andsilk. The border is composed of roses and vine branches.

Eight hundred dollars was paid for another specimen of Flemish tapestry (401) measur-ing 25 by 24 inches. The Virgin, seated, holds the infant Jesus to her breast. Behind her stands St. John holding a cross. The tapestry is woven in silk and gold, and has a border of raim leaves, roses, and vines.

An adoration of the shepherds, woven in silk, wool, and gold, was No. 402. It is of the same In the foreground are the Virgin and two hepherds kneeling before the infant Jesus. who lies on a bed of straw. In the background are St. Joseph and three other shepherds, and near them are an ox and an ass. The piece is 43 by 35 inches, and sold for $1,520.

An Italian tapestry of the sixteenth century. bearingis figure of the Virgin after Raphael's Madonna of the Choir, brought $840. It measures 5% by 4 feet, and is woven in wool and gold, with a border of palm leaves.

The highest price paid for any of the lots to-day was brought by No. 402, the last of the tapestries sold. It is Italian work of the sixteenth century, and bears a group repre-senting the adoration of the Magi. In the foreground is seated the Virgin, who holds with the right hand the infant Jesus, who is seated on her knee. Her left hand rests on her breast. The child holds out his hands as though to welcome the Magi. who crowd about him. One of them offers him a presents him with a silver vase, which is placed on the ground. The third holds a golden ewer. In the background is St. Joseph eading the ox and the ass by a halter, and behind them are the retainers and horses of the Magi. It is five by six feet and has a border composed of grotesque figures on a gold ground. It brought $10,200.

The sale of the furniture to-dar began with No. 672, an objoing chest of carved walnut. It is 36 inches high by 8 feet long. The principal face is decorated with nine gothic arches, surmounted by angels. In each arch stands the figure of a saint with his symbol. It is Preach work of the sixteenth century. and sold for $1.020.

A dressing table (070) of carved oak, made in France during the reign of Francis L. brought $1,000. It is 6 feet high and ornately carved in figures of men and women. On the front are two medallions enclosing busts of Mars and Venus.

Another dressing table of carved walnut (600) sold for $7,000. It is also of French workmanship, and belongs to the sixteenth century. It is 5 feet 3 inches in height and is composed of three parts. The base consists of two chimeras with the heads of women elaborately carved. These support the central part of the piece. The corners and centre are ornamented with three pilaster. Between ithese are the doors carved with the Laocoon group. The top of the dressing case has one large door carved with an armorial design, flanked on either side by figures of satyrs in relief.

An Italian chair (716) of the sixteenth century sold for $720. It is in the form of the letter X and is composed entirely of carved and gilded wood. Each arm of the chair. which is five feet high, is ornamented with the head of a woman and carved with figures of cherul's.

The first of the Italian porcelains was a plate for a ewer (1.222). It was made by Deruta in the early part of the sixteenth contury, and bears in the centre the arms of the Orsini family. It measures twelve inches in diameter and sold for $620. Another plate (1.223), by the same artist, decorated with the profile bust of a woman, brought the same.

MISS LOTTA BLACKBALLED.

It was Only a Cilque, Mrs. Helmuth Says, that Wouldn't Admit Her to Serosis.

Sorosis was in a bad humor last Monday. and the unfortunate candidates for member ship who came up for consideration at the business meeting of the club held that afternoon at Sherry's fared badly. Two ladies were blackballed, and the name of a third was withdrawn by her friends after an excited discussion. The withdrawal of this name was followed by the withdrawal of all the other names proposed, excepting that of Miss Alice Cary Croly, whose mother, Mrs. "Jennis June" Croly, was the organizer of the club. By the time Miss Croly's name was reached the meeting had become so stormy that no-

the meeting had become so stormy that nobody seemed to know whether Miss Croly got in or not, but it is believed that her name was received favoratly.

In the absence of the President, Mrs. Fanny C. Helmuth, the chairman of the Executive Committee, presided. The first sign of trouble appeared when Mrs. Helmuth requested Mrs. Sara Kidder of Chicago to retire from the meeting on the ground that she was not a resident member of the New York club and therefore had no right to attend the business meetings. Mrs. Kidder looked surprised and her friends protested mildly, but the Chairman was firm and Mrs. Kidder looked surprised and her friends protested mildly, but the Chairman was firm and Mrs. Kidder retired. Then the ladies settled themselves back in their cents and prepared to deal with the candidates who were up for election. This was the last business meeting of the year, so the list was a long one.

ness meeting of the year, so the list was a long one.

The first name balloted for was that of Miss Lotta Crabtree, the actress. In the discussion of the candidate which always precedes the voting in Sorosis no objection was made to Miss Crabtree, although the fact that she is an actress was frequently mentioned. Mrs. E. Kidder had proposed the candidate, and her vouchers were Mrs. A. M. Taliner and Mrs. Sydney Rosenfeld. Miss Georgia Cayvan, who is a prominent member of Sorosis, had written a letter of recommendation to the society urging Miss Crabtree's election. The ballot was taken and the Chairman announced that the candidate had not been elected. Considerable excitement followed the announcement, and somebody proposed that the actress's name again be put to a vote. This was done, and the result was the same.

The next name proposed was that of Mrs. John Dillon. No objection was made in the discussion, and most of the members supposed that the blackballing was over for the afternoon. The vote was taken, and the Chairman announced that Mrs. Dillon also had been rejected.

man announced that Mrs. Dillon also had been rejected.

The meeting was in confusion by this time, and when the name of Mrs. Thaddeus E. Wakeman came up for consideration it became apparent that she would suffer the same fate. So her friends interfered, and Mrs. Wakeman's name was not voted on. The names of all the other candidates were windrawn except that of Miss Croly, and the balloting on her name was conducted amid such disorder the result seems uncertain to every one. After this the meeting adjourced.

Mrs. Heimuth says she does not believe that Miss Lotta was rejected because she is an actress. "Sorosis has never descriminated before against actresses," she said, "and there are several ladies in the club now who were formerly on the stage. The blackballing after the first name was the work of a small clique who were determined to blackball anybody that came up. It is too bad that the other names were not immediately withdrawn as soon as that feeling manifested itself."

Mrs. Helmuth said that there had been no resignations since the meeting, nor was any expected.

Miss Lotta takes her rejection philosophically. "I'm satisfied," she said yesterday, "and haven't the slightest hard feeling toward those members of the sectety who did not see their

MORE TALK OF BUYING JEROME PARK. The City Will Need It for a Reservoir in a

The story that the city, which has long been considering the purchase, intends buying the old Jerome Park race course for a reservoir site was revived vesterday by the Tribune which said that Mayor Gilroy and the Aqueduct Commissioner had already decided on the purchase. Mayor Gilroy said that neither he nor the Aqueduct Commissioner had taken a nor the Aqueduct Commissioner had taken a single step recently looking to the purchase of the park, but it is not impossible, he said, that the city may soon secure it. The engineers of the Aqueduct Commission say that the course is the only feasible site for a reservoir that will furnish the pressure needed to supply water to the nigh points in the annexed district, but the reservoir there will not be needed for ten years. The question now is whether it would not be cheaper for the city to buy the ground and pay the interest on the bonds than to wait until the land is actually required and pay for it at largely increased value. Jerome Park is owned by the Jerome Park Villa Site and Improvement Association.

Some time ago Auctioneer Peter F. Meyer offered $600,000 for the old race course, but he withdrow his offer the following day.

THE TABERNACLE DEBTS.

A Reported Adju tment with the Creditors -- What Talmage Says.

It was reported last night that a satisfactory solution of the financial difficulties in which the Brooklyn Tabernacie is involved had been reached and that the congregation would not have to hear Dr. Talmage announce his resignation from the pulpit to-morrow morning. It is said that all the creditors, with a single exception, have agreed to a settlement on a 23 per cent basis, and that the money to meet the claims of the obdurate creditor will be raised to-day. Dr. Talmage said last night:

I wish very much to remain in Brooklyn. I profer to stay, and I am still hopeful that I will be able to do so. If the floating debt of $100,000 is paid, I will remain, but if not, I will resign. I don't know the details of what has been done to raise the money, but I am hopeful. Under any circumstances, I am determined to relieve myself and the congregation from the suspense which has been hanging over us. I probably shall not know what the result will be until Sunday morning." is said that all the creditors, with a single ex-

Figuring on the Jersey Peach Crop. FLEMINGTON, N. J., May 10.-Two hundred and ninety replies to 300 inquiries sent out to the largest peach growers in this part of the State, regarding the prospects for this year's erop, substantially report that the prospects for a very large crop are good. The cold spring weather retarded the growth of reach buds until the late frosts were over. The buds are opening now and are healthy in appearance. In the year of a full crop Hunterdon county has yielded 1,500,000 baskets, it is expected that that number will be exceeded this year. Similar encouraging reports come from Warren Somerset, and Busser counties, where the peach interest has greatly developed in the last five years.

NEW BOOKS. Brief Reviews of Important and Interesting New Publications.

In "Katharine North" (Harper & Brothers) Miss Maria Louise Pool tells the story of a girl who is weak enough to marry the wrong man, and strong enough to run away from him im mediately after the marriage ceremony. Katharine has renaibilities which are not understood by her mother, a woman whose rather remarkable force of character is derived. perhaps reasonably enough, from ignorance and spiritual inertia. The reader will be interested, we think, in tracing the eurlous conditions which ninks it possible for Mrs. North to dominate her husband and to force her daughter to marry Deacon Grove, who scents his handkerchief and his whiskers. and who is three times a widower at the age of forty. It is good, however, that Katharine runs away from the scented Deacon promptly. and that she finds in her Aunt Kate a spirituality whileh responds to her own, and in Owen Liandaff, her aunt's stepson, somebody who is hardly more than half of forty, who does not scent his whiskers, who is likewise responsive spiritually, and who has had no wives at all. This is a New England story illustrating the needs of the finer sensibilities. It traces the sorrows and the compensations of the sensitively tempered spirit. A good many, doubt-is to be taken into consideration. "Ruminations," a volume of essays by Paul Siegvolk (G. P. Putnam's Sons, is daintily written, and shows that the author is familiar with elegant literature. Modestly refraining from the dogmatic inculcation of his own ideas, he presents various views of the subjects which he discusses in an agreeable manner, and has made a book which scholars and gentlemen can read with pleasure. In a group of essays concerning women he considers the ideal American lady, friendships between men and women, woman suffragists in America. and some other points which the general subject suggests to him; and he has essays also, longer and shorter, upon various evidences of literature and music, upon character, egolam, old age, life and death, and much else that invites the speculation of the philosophical and cultivated mind. He has observed nicely, and he is fortunate in a graceful style.

less, will find it less interesting than "Roweny in Boston." They will miss particularly the overflowing humor of that delightful story.

But this is on a different plan, and the motive

"The Dictator." a novel by Mr. Justin Mc-Carthy (Harper & Brothers), has for its chief character an Englishman of forty who has been running a South American republic with firmness and with conscience. The republic expels him and then calls him back. In the nterval of its ingratitude he visits England. where he finds a wife and is attacked by assassins, and where Mr. McCarthy's story has to do with him. The tale is romantic without fear, and does not permit itself to be ridden by the incubus of plausibility, so far as we can discover. If there be such things as adamantine nerves, the Dictator is supplied with them. His interest is hardly aroused when a Sicilian brave attacks him with a knife in St. James's Park at midnight; and be is calm. masterly, and unexultant when, several days later, in his bedroom in the country house of Sir Rupert Langley, a Minister of the Crown, at about the hour of suprise, a dynamite bomb explodes and blows the same bravo's head off. Surrounded by fire, assassins, and a naturally demoralized household, he preserves his faculties, summons the Coroner, and does everything else that is proper to an occasion of the kind. His fron character and the heroic nature of his purposes in life make him a lion in London society and win for him the love of Sir Rupert Langley's daughter. His friend, Capt. Sarrasin, is another strong and interesting figure in the story. The Captain's advencorners of the world. He knows all languages and dialects, all politics, all rulers, and he supplies one of the London newspapers with exclusive foreign information of remarkable value. Mr. McCarthy does not say whether the Captain is ever called upon to filuminate the outlandish politics of New York and Washington in his London newspaper, but if he is he seems to be a man sufficiently distin-guished above his British brothers in the business to be able to get the thing straight. The skill of Mr. McCarthy as a story teller is evinced in "The Dictator," of course. The novel is readable, but we suspect it was written in more of a hurry and with a sensibility less alert and discriminating than either the author or his readers could have wished.

Great surgings and lashings of the literary spirit occur in "Napoleon," a drama by Richmond Sheffield Dement (Knight, Leonard & Co. Chicago). The rhetoric of the play is tremendously disturbed. It must have been an inexpressible relief to Napoleon to have all this language out of him. He must have felt, we think, as one dispossessed of devila.

'A Siren of the Lobby." a play by Andrew William Hammond (Z. R. Bennett & Son) is very long. We wish we might add that its length is justified by its interest, but conscience forbids. The characters make speeches which might be called half-hours with the Congressional Record. It lacks the dramatic dash which the theatre calls for, and it cannot he regarded as a closet play, for it is too large Fanciful, deft, delicate in thought, graceful in expression are the poems of Mrs. Anna Hubbard Mercur, published very beautifully under the title of "Cosmos" (Peter Paul & Brother, Buffalo). The volume will be the exhibit of Sullivan county. Pa., in the Woman's Library at the World's Fair.

"Crumbs from the Chess Board," a selection from the problems composed by Charles A. Gilberg, is published by the author in this city. It has 200 plates handsomely produced in colors, and a table of solutions. "Sanctified Spice: or. Pungent Seasonings from the Pulpit" is the somewhat peculiar title selected by the Rev. Madison C. Peters, pastor of the Bloomingdale Reformed Church of this city, as appropriate for a volume of his sermone and addresses (Wilbur B. Ketcham). "Islam in America," by Mohammed Alexander Russell Webb, is issued by the Oriental Publishing Company. We suspect the pamphlet is quite large enough to be in proportion to the fact it is concerned with. "Outlines of Roman History," by Prof. H. F.

Pelham of Oxford, is a reprint, with many additions and alterations, of the article on Roman history in the last edition of the "Encyclopædia Britannica." The great part of it is devoted to the period from 133 R.C. to 60 A. D. It is supplied with maps. (G. P. Putnam's Sona)

Walter McDougall's "Unauthorized History of Columbus" is full of caricatures conceived and executed without timidity or restraint (McDougall Publishing Company, Newark).

"Cassell's New Biographical Dictionary" is clearly printed, and has the advantage of being contained in a single volume of moderate size. (Cassell Publishing Company.) Of fletion newly published we note! "Under the Great Seal." by Joseph Hatton; "Madame Rosely," by Mile V. Monniot, translated by Elvira Quintero and Jean Mack, and "Frince Hermann, Regent," by Jules Lemaitre, translated by Belle M. Sherman (Cassell Company);

"From Out the Past: The Story of a Meeting in Toursine." by Emily Howland Hoppin (Dodd, Mead & Co.); "Mr. Philip St. Claire; Kovel of Fashionable Life," by Robert Apple ton, and "Stories About Doctors." by J. Cordy Jeaffreson (G. W. Dillingham); "Grave Lady Jane," by Florence Warden (John A. Taylor & Co.); "Taken From the Enemy," by Henry Newbolt (Rand, McNally & Co.); "All the Dog's Fault," by T. B. Connery (Peter Fenelon Col Her); "A Medicus in Love," by G. Van Taube (W. D. Rowland); "Merely Mary Ann." by L Zangwill (Raphael Tuck & Sons), and "Monsieur Nasson and Others," by Grace Howard Peirce (Price-McGill Company, St. Paul).

Macmillan & Co. publish in the Adventure

Series " The Memoirs and Travels of Augustus, Count de Benyowsky, in Siberia, Kamchatka. Japan, the Liukiu Islands, and For mosa," in the last century.

"Nanon," by George Sand, with English notes by Dr. B. D. Woodward, and "Pres du Bonheur," by Henri Ardel, with English notes by Prof. E. Rigal, are published in French by William R. Jenkins of this city.

Dodd, Mend & Co. publish "Youth," an essay translated by Ernest Bedwood from the French of Charles Wagner.

"Am I a Jew or Gentile? or, the Created Origin of the Races," by Thomas A. Davies, is published by G. W. Dillingham. "Street Railway Motors; with Descriptions and Cost of Plants," by Herman Haupt, is from Henry Carey Baird & Co., Philadelphia.

"The Creation of God." by Dr. Jacob Hart-mann, is published by the Truth Seeker Company: also "The Resurrection of Jesus; an Ag-nostic's View," by Don Allen. "Conflict of the Nineteenth Century: the

INSANE, BUT SHE LOVED MUSIC,

And Her Son John Played His Harmonton for Her Hour After Hour.

Julius Stiner of 504 First avenue became insane a year ago, and was sent to Ward's Island. His wife tried to support the family of five, and she became insane a few weeks ago. Her insanity took the form of a homieldal mania. Nothing but music would soothe

The eldest child in the family is John. sixteen-year-old son, and he ewns a mouth harmonica. With this he could control her. But he had to work to support his brothers and sisters, and he couldn't stay home to play the harmonica all the time. What to do puzzled him for a while. Then he discovered that the promise that he would play was sufficient to keep his mother quiet. So until yeaterday he played every morning before he left home, and then he would prop his mother up in a chair and tell her that if she remained there quietly all day he would play for her again when he got back.

The closet sister did the housework and looked after the other children. Hour after hour the poor insane woman would sit where her boy had left her and would chatter about the music that Johnny would make when he got back. And hour after hour in the evening, when Johnny did get back, the children would all gather about the chair, while Johnny would play and play until the muscles of his mouth ached. But he had to work to support his brothers would play and play until the muscles of his mouth ached.

He was playing yesterday. The other children were dancing and singles and the mother was lying back enraptured, when officers of the Gerry society came and said they must take her away to the hospital. "She is dangerous," they said. Johnny protested vigorously, and all the children set up a wail, but it availed nothing. When they had taken the mother off they came back and took the three smallest children, leaving only Johnny and the eldest sister weeping as though their hearts would break.

LITTLE ROCK, May 18 -- John Wilson, a grayhaired old man, forced his sixteen-year-old niece. Myrtle Summers, to elope with him on Monday. The girl's father pursued the cou-ple with a shotgun, and overtook them yester-day. When Wilson refused to surrender the girl, Summers shot him dead. Summers surlered to the authorities, but was acquitted by the Coroner's jury.

ALL FOR THE CITY TO PAY. The Legislature's Present to Mulberry Bend

Property Owners, The Board of Street Opening and Improve. ment was requested by ex-Judge Charles Donohue at its meeting yesterday to refrain from levying an assessment on the property in the neighborhood of the proposed Mulberry Bend Park in part payment for that improvement. Mr. Donohue said that such an assessment would be vacated, as chapter 528 of the Laws of 1893 requires that the entire cost of the improvement be borne by the city. As first arranged, the property immediately benefited was to pay thirty per cent. This was recently reduced to fifteen per cent, and now the Legislature has absolved it from paying anything. The matter was referred to Comptroller Myers, who was instructed to confer with Corporation Counsel Clark regarding the city's rights. Bend Park in part payment for that improve-

HARPER'S MAGAZINE

FOR IUNE.

A new novel descriptive of English life begins in this number, entitled

The Handsome Humes,

William Black.

It opens with an evening in London, but soon finds its way into Engish woods and fields, where beautiful English maidens wander among the daffodils and nourish a spring-time romance of fancy, whose summer the growing story will unfold with a charm which the readers of "Judith Shakespeare" and other novels of this favorite author will pleasantly anticipate. The novel will run through six parts, each of which will be a generously large installment, and will be illustrated by Mr. WILLIAM SMALL, whose full-page drawing for this part, engraved by FLORIAN, one of the best engravers in Europe, is given as a frontispiece to the Number.

The Evolution of New York.

From the Revolution to the opening of the Erie Canal, is the subject of an interesting paper by Mr. Thomas A. Janvier, illustrated by Mr. HOWARD PYLE.

The Number opens with a paper, beautifully illustrated from paintings by Mr. WILLIAM M. CHASE, entitled contributed by Mr. JOHN GILMER SPEED. The readers of the MAGAZINE will reluctantly part company with the Huguenot lovers of Mr. A. Conan Doyle's historical romance, THE REFUGEES, illustrated by Mr. T. DE THULSTRUP, which is concluded in this Number. Miss Woolson's Novel, HORACE CHASE, which is rapidly approaching its climax of interest, is continued.

An Artist's Summer Vacation,
